Fees may change without notice. All fees must be paid prior to the start of class.

- Each session in fall and spring is equal to 7.5 weeks, which is half of a SFU semester. Summer sessions are extra intensive 6-week courses, with additional class hours to match the 7.5-week curriculum. Tuition and fees remain the same, but housing is pro-rated. Book fees not included.
- Student services fee includes: technology fee, campus health services, placement testing, and express mailing of visa documents.
- Residence halls and meal fees are approximate and vary depending single or double occupancy. Fees are charged per semester.
- Students must enroll in SFU health insurance throughout the duration of studies. Totals above are estimates based on pro-rated health insurance of $429 per session or $858 per semester, subject to availability.

How to apply

There are two ways to apply:

- Students can choose to apply directly to the Intensive English Program at SFU.
- Students who are academically admissible to SFU but do not have sufficient language proficiency may be conditionally admitted and must complete the top level of the Intensive English Program at SFU. Applicants for conditional admission are not required to submit the personal statement in English or TOEFL scores.
